SUMMER 2027 · MOUNTAIN VIEW, HAWAIʻI

Dr. Dirt's School of Natural Wisdom

Soil, seeds, chickens, microbes and muddy hands.

June 7 - July 15, 2027 · Monday–Thursday · 8:00 a.m.–2:00 p.m.

Who thrives here: curious children who love being outside and are happy to get wet and dirty. Just 8–12 children, with Dr. Dirt and his wife, Cherie.

Your child will

- Build a real chicken coop and raise chicks
- Plant and tend a vegetable and fruit garden
- Make compost, bokashi and compost tea
- Grow living cultures for the soil
- Look at everything under the microscope, before and after
- Cook from the garden and set the table
- Hear stories and learn to read creatively
- Make healing salves and plant extracts with Dr. Dirt's wife, Cherie, 20 years in education
- Earn wooden badges they brand themselves over the fire
- Climb, play, get dirty and learn with the whole body

Four weeks: Build & Begin

June 7 – July 1. Bare ground to a finished coop, with the chicks moving in and a family harvest day the children lead.

Six weeks: Tend & Lead

June 7 – July 15. The compost finishes, children become the keepers, investigate their own questions and teach their families.

$3,300 a week, shared by the group

The smallest class is 8 and the largest is 12, so a full class costs the least. Your weekly price is set at registration and never goes up. Food is not included.

Scholarships, grants, financial aid and barter are possible. Contact Dr. Dirt to talk it over.

12 children	$275/week
10 children	$330/week
8 children	$412.50/week

Everyone starts on Day 1. Registration closes May 21, 2027. A 50% deposit holds a spot.
